TO: Small Institution Representative

For small institutions (typically 1 to 10 employees) receiving Public Health Service (PHS) research funds, it may be difficult to conduct an inquiry or investigation into an allegation of research misconduct without real or apparent conflict of interest as required by the PHS Policies on Research Misconduct (42 C.F.R. Part 93). For this reason, small institutions may file a Small Organization Statement with the Office of Research Integrity (ORI) to establish their assurance in lieu of a formal institutional policy. The small institution should file a Small Organization Statement immediately upon notification from ORI or prior to receipt of PHS research funds (see next page and <https://ori.hhs.gov/small-organization-statement>).

By submitting the Small Organization Statement the institution agrees to report all allegations of research misconduct to ORI immediately upon learning of the allegations or evidence of possible research misconduct. ORI will then work with the institution to implement a process consistent with the regulation to handle any allegations of research misconduct at the small institution. This process may involve ORI taking primary responsibility for conducting the inquiry and/or investigation. The institution must also submit an annual report to ORI.

Filing a Small Organization Statement with ORI does not relieve the institution from complying with other provisions of the PHS misconduct regulation (available on the ORI homepage at <https://ori.hhs.gov>). This includes, but is not limited to, the institution's obligation to inform its staff about the statement, to keep a copy of the statement on file, to take necessary immediate or interim administrative actions to handle allegations, to protect the confidentiality of the whistleblower and respondent, and to cooperate with and report to ORI.

Please contact our office if you have any questions.

Sincerely,
